

The 2nd China Jiangsu Conference for International Technology Transfer and Commercialization

-- For Cooperation in Strategic Emerging Industries

Invitation

June 9, 2010

Dear Sir/Madam,

Located in the coastal area of eastern China and neighboring Shanghai, Jiangsu is one of the most developed and most dynamic provinces in China. With a great number of universities, research institutes and innovative enterprises and enormous market potential, Jiangsu has now become the leading province of innovation nationwide.

Every two years, Jiangsu Province organizes a large international conference on technology transfer and commercialization, to build a platform for international cooperation and interaction in technology and innovation and to promote close partnership between overseas and local participants by providing opportunities of presentation, matchmaking and site visits.

The 1st China Jiangsu Conference for International Technology Transfer and Commercialization (CITTC) was held in 2008 and turned out to be a great success. Nearly 300 experts from more than 220 famous organizations from over 30 countries and regions around the world and more than 400 representatives from Jiangsu enterprises, universities and research institutes participated in the Conference.

This year's 2nd CITTC will be jointly hosted by the Ministry of Science and Technology of China (MOST) and Jiangsu Provincial Government on November 12-14 2010 and will focus on the international cooperation in strategic emerging industries such as, new energy, bio-technology and medicine, new materials, wireless sensor network and internet of things (WSN/IOT), which are priorities in the development of Jiangsu Province. The event will include a plenary session in Nanjing and business talks and on-spot visits to other cities of Jiangsu Province.

On behalf of Department of Science and Technology, Jiangsu Province, the organizer of the 2nd CITTC, I cordially invite you to Nanjing and attend this Conference. It would be greatly appreciated if you could respond at your earliest convenience.

I am looking forward to seeing you among our honorable guests.

Sincerely yours,
